Background

The Weaverville Community Forest is located within the wildland-urban interface of the town of Weaverville in Trinity County California. Weaverville was founded in 1848 as a gold mining settlement, and is approximately 45 miles west of Redding. This historic town still exhibits much of Trinity County's 19th century character. It is nestled in the Weaver Creek basin, surrounded by public and private forest lands, and is near the Trinity Alps Wilderness. Weaverville is Trinity County's largest community, with a population of 3,500 in an otherwise sparsely populated county (Trinity County has a population of less than 14,000).

Objectives

The Weaverville Community Forest is a multi-year stewardship project on approximately 13,000 acres of forested public (BLM and USFS) lands. This project meets both the Weaverville community, BLM and USFS management objectives for multiple use resource management, reducing hazardous fuels near residences, improving overall forest health, and protecting viewsheds.
